

6.3.1: The institution has effective welfare measures for teaching and non-teaching.

Ans.

The organization has implemented a number of welfare initiatives for its teaching and nonteaching employees. In response, the college administration is lenient when it comes to a number of assistance programs for both teaching and non-teaching employees.

1. Financial assistance for attending national and international workshops, conferences, and seminars. is starting this year and will cover all of the registration costs.
2. The institution frequently observes International Yoga Day by hosting yoga classes for staff and students led by certified yoga instructors.
3. Researchers pursuing Ph.D. and minor research projects are given permission to work less hours and take necessary leaves, as well as to carry out social programs.
4. Teachers have a special place and choice in the library reading room.
5. Staff members have access to a gym and sports facilities. at no cost at the college. Additionally, the college has a free running track that is open to all of the staff members, both teaching and non-teaching, as well as the local community.
